One hundred years ago the temperance league described alcohol as a demon and a sin. In our more secular age the sin is not against god but against "health and safety" which is one of our modern day religions. Thus, those who constantly rail against alcohol consumption at any level have a moral rather than health agenda.

The conventional view that National Prohibition failed rests upon an historically flimsy base. The successful campaign to enact National Prohibition was the fruit of a century-long temperance campaign, experience of which led prohibitionists to conclude that a nationwide ban on alcohol was the most promising of the many strategies tried thus far.
