Something is terribly wrong with Connor’s mom—she keeps slipping into bizarre trances. Connor suspects that the key to his mom’s strange behavior is an old art book filled with paintings of a woman who looks exactly like her. But the artist who created those paintings died before his mom was evenborn. Connor gets his chance to break the evil link between the past and the present when he is mysteriously whisked back in time to the 1920s. But can he save his mom—and himself—before it’s too late?

Muncie is the classic small American city. But for much of the past two centuries, the city fell victim to murder, corruption and the bizarre. Mayor Rollin Bunch went to prison for mail fraud, while his police commissioner faced a murder rap. Viola “ Babe ” Swartz ran a brothel out of a truck stop that was raided by police at least a dozen times but ran for sheriff in the 1974 primary election. June Holland, of the locally famous Holland triplets, killed her neighbor for refusing to sell her house. Authors Keith Roysdon and Douglas Walker explore the notorious and unusual side of Muncie ’ s history.

Dreena Burton demonstrates that anyone can prepare an array of delectable vegan dishes without compromising one ’ s health or sense of taste. The Everyday Vegan includes recipes as well as cooking and shopping tips, meal plan suggestions, and nutritional analyses.

In this radiant new collection, Franz Wright shares his regard for life in all its forms and his belief in the promise of blessing and renewal. As he watches the “ Resurrection of the little apple tree outside / my window, ” he shakes off his fear of mortality, concluding “ what death . . . There is only / mine / or yours.– / but the world / will be filled with the living. ” In prayerlike poems he invokes the one “ who spoke the world / into being ” and celebrates a dazzling universe–snowflakes descending at nightfall, the intense yellow petals of the September sunflower, the planet adrift in a blizzard of stars, the simple mystery of loving other people. As Wright overcomes a natural tendency toward loneliness and isolation, he gives voice to his hope for “ the only animal that commits suicide, ” and, to our deep pleasure, he arrives at a place of gratitude that is grounded in the earth and its moods.

Detective Jake Dagers likes his murder investigations the way he likes his women—straightforward, easy, and with a killer body. So when his older-than-dust partner throws his back out on a goblin raid, his captain assigns him a new running mate—a sexy young half-elf by the name of Shay Steele. It seems like a match made in Dagers’ imagination, but Steele ’ s no pushover. She ’ s a powerful forensic psychic, and she ’ s got sass oozing out of her boots. In a debut case teeming with fire mages, foundries, and a dead guy who ’ s crispier than bacon, it ’ s pretty clear Dagers isn’ t the only one getting a heaping helping of RED HOT STEELE.

This book provides a unique perspective on the linguistic relationships between the Ancient Egyptian and Bantu languages of East/Central/Southern Africa. It will be of interest to readers of Egyptology, linguists, students, and the wider public who wish to find out more about the structure of the Ancient Egyptian language and how it connects with other languages, particularly with Bantu languages. The subject matter is different from other books as it examines the etymology of words, together with their sound/meaning relationships and shows by using verifiable hieroglyphic forms how Ancient Egyptian words may be pronounced by inserting Bantu vowels which fit the meanings derived from the skeletal templates of consonants in the Ancient Egyptian language.

Alice Wu is at Camp Rewind only because her therapist thinks it ’ ll help her overcome the social anxiety she ’ s battled since childhood. She ’ s not sure she believes that theory, but will try anything to make a real friend. A casual fling would also be nice, but she ’ s not holding her breath. Rosa Salazar hopes camp will be an escape from a life permanently altered. Eviscerated online for her feminist critique of a popular video game, Rosa has endured months of anonymous threats over social media, doxxing, and, worst of all, the posting of graphic, sexually explicit material stolen from her cloud storage—including a dirty video she made for an ex. Using a fake name, she enrolls in camp craving a return to a simpler time, before the shame. Alice and Rosa soon discover that at Camp Rewind, anything is possible. Even an unlikely friendship that swiftly becomes something more.

The Seventh Sacrament is the fifth in the Nic Costa series, David Hewson’s detective novels of love and death in Italy. There ’ s an entire underground city down there . . . houses and temples, entire streets. I talked to a couple of the cavers Leo called in. They hero-worshipped Giorgio. The man had been to places the rest of them could only dream about. Giorgio Bramante, a Roman archaeology professor, was master of the hidden world beneath the earth – until the day he lost his young son, Alessio, to a group of students intent on re-creating a centuries-old ritual to a long-banished god. His rage knew no bounds and, in a frenzy, he beat one of the students to death. Released from prison fourteen years later, Giorgio is bent upon a terrifying revenge on all those he blames for the loss of his son. Inspector Leo Falcone, a member of the original investigating team, is one of his targets. And Nic Costa, watching Falcone move relentlessly into the man ’ s merciless grip, realizes the answer must lie in solving a cold case that, like the forgotten Alessio Bramante, has long been regarded as dead and buried for good.

Reprinted from the expanded 1815 edition, this treatise offers more than 100 recipes for shades of reds, blues, yellows, browns, and blacks, divided into dyes for woolsens, linens, and cottons.
